

at Home on the RANGE

- JEFF HUNTER plays "Temple Houston" as if he'd been born and raised in the Old West. Actually, he was born in sophisticated New Orleans and grew up in Milwaukee, where his father was a sales engineer. He made his first professional appearance (on radio) as a high-school senior; studied at Northwestern and UCLA, and was signed from there to a movie contract. He's worked steadily since; has been fortunate enough not to be type-cast. Married in 1950 to Barbara Rush, they had a son Christopher before their divorce in 1955. Two years later he wed former model Dusty Bartlett. Her son Steele lives with them, and they now have two more sons—Toddy and Scott.